ALABAMA HAS LOW STATEWIDE DOMESTIC RATE FOR ELECTRICITY

> Reports Legislative Investigating Committee on Public Utilities In Alabama

N THIS investigation the thing which is of most interest to consumer is the cost to him of electric current per kilowatt hour. Under the rates of Alabama Power Company as last revised by the Public Service Commission the average cost to the domestic consumer during the year 1930 was 5.05c against 7.75c per kilowatt hour during the year 1926, or a reduction of 34.8% in that period of time, and is 17% less than the national average . . . and is the lowest statewide domestic rate in the United

"Upon the whole it is very clear to your Committee that power is available to new industries in Alabama in rates which compare very favorably with those of other States. We realize that a strict comparison of rates is impossible because of varying conditions in different localities but from the evidence before us it appears that the Alabama consumer is enjoying rates which when considered all together are lower than the general average throughout this section of the country."

"We find that the rates which the utilities collect for their services are prescribed by the Alabama Public Service Commission and it is undisputed that this Commission has given careful attention and consideration to these matters, the fact being that there has been a reduction in rates for the consumers in Alabama of more ALABAMA'S than $1,000,000 within the past two and one-half CHEAPEST years."-From Report of Legislative Committee
